Girls' Television and New Media Camp
Gala Screening

Girls from the Women in Media Foundation's (WIMF) Girls' Television and New Media Camp will unveil two films that they have created at a gala screening event taking place at Algonquin College's Woodroffe Campus. For two weeks, the girls have been working on their films at Algonquin College, utilizing its state-of-the-art media facilities. The WIMF Girls' Television and New Media Camp is offered to girls between the ages of 12-15 from culturally and economically diverse backgrounds and gives teenage girls a unique chance to work as camera operators, lighting and audio technicians, and video tape editors as they script, shoot and edit their own videos. The WIMF gratefully acknowledges Algonquin College as its Ontario college host of choice. WIMF gratefully acknowledges CBC Television as a national broadcast program sponsor and Algonquin College as its Ontario college host of choice.
